Businesswoman-turned author delighted at successful book signing

Written by Newsdesk

Businesswoman-turned author Karen Millie-James took part in the first book signing with WH Smith of her successful debut novel The Shadows Behind Her Smile.

'It was an amazing experience to be able to meet and talk to those who have enjoyed the book already'

Fans, along with new readers, took the opportunity to meet the writer of this compelling crime and mystery thriller at intu Watford late last month.

Mum-of-one Karen, of Chesham, said: "It was an amazing experience to be able to meet and talk to those who have enjoyed the book already and to introduce a whole new group of people to it as well. This is the best way to promote your book and I can only thank the team at WH Smith who gave me so much help. The manager was delighted with the number of books sold."

Karen's novel, a corporate thriller which combines the heat of the business world with the secrecy of Special Forces, has received rave reviews since its release earlier this year. There has been great media interest following Karen's BBC radio tour across the UK and Channel Islands and she now has a firm following both in the UK and USA and on all social media sites.

Karen, who is married to Peter and has a daughter, Rosanna, 23, a professional theatre singer and dancer, is currently working hard to complete the book's sequel Where In The Dark which is due for release late this year or early next.

Karen will return to WH Smith in Watford on August 27, from 11am – 4pm.

The book is available to buy now in hardback and paperback from all good book shops and to download from Amazon to Kindle. The audiobook is due to be released this month.
